Local Allstars sweep tournament

The drama of Little League World Series moved north last week when the Farmington Elks Club played the National Anthem, Sunday, July 16.

This was the third time our local Little League Allstars ventured to the Farmington Elks Club for the Allstars Tournament and three times was lucky.

Starting Friday, July 14, at 4:30 p.m., the Northern Oxford Allstars won five games in a row in three days—one game Friday, three Saturday and the Championship game at 3 p.m. on Sunday.

The Elks' Tournament has been around since 1981, and in 1987 we won the Sportsmanship Award but never got past a third-place finish until now.

In game one we faced the Fairfield Allstars, the team that put us in the loser's bracket of this double elimination tournament the last two years in a row. Each time, incidentally, on the first day. But this Friday, July 14, was different with Tim Remington, Sean Gilson and Josh Otten combining for a four-hitter and winning the opener decisively, 8 to 4.

Saturday morning game time was 9 and North Oxford faced North Franklin. The Allstars came loaded for bear. Sean Gilson started the game but a sore arm ended his pitching after only one inning. Clint Myers got the ball to open the bottom of the second and held North Franklin scoreless for the next three innings.

This game was all offense, with Jake Bartholomew hitting a fence clearing home run and the Allstars scoring 15 runs. The game was called after four innings with the Allstars ahead 15 to 3—it was never in doubt.

Game three for the Allstars came at noon and was against Poland/Ketter. The score was tied in the top of the sixth, 3-3. Alan Lovejoy started for the Allstars and in the bottom of the second inning got a little dicey. Although Alan was pitching well, Poland was hitting even better, so in the bottom of the second, Josh Otten was brought in to put out the fire and kept the game even at 3-3 until the top of the sixth when the Allstars put together a three-run rally. Josh singled, stole second and came home on a single by Bartholomew who went to second on the throw to the plate. Mike Rackliffe laid down a perfect bunt to move Jake Bartholomew to third and after a calamity of errors scored himself behind Jake. The inning ended with three runs crossing the plate and the Allstars leading 6 to 3. Tim Remington came in to pitch the

Dunham reappointed as Greenwood assessor

The Greenwood Board of Selectmen has reappointed former selectman Herbert Dunham to a one-year term as Greenwood town assessor. The board has also set new guidelines for the assessor's job performance.

According to the current board members, the appointment was made over the objections of a number of townspeople, who complained to them of allegedly unfair assessments and late tax bills during Mr. Dunham's lengthy tenure as assessor.

Marie Bartlett, current chairwoman of the Board of Selectmen, said that Mr. Dunham's reappointment had been contingent on his agreeing to work within the new guidelines set by the board.

"Herbie's agreed to meet the conditions and to work with us," she said. "The guidelines include keeping copies of all assessment records at the town office and having each year's tax assessment information turned in to the town office by the first week in September."

Selectman Raymond Seames said that getting the assessment information in by that date would mean that tax bills should go out by the third week in September. This, in turn, would mean tax revenues would start coming in earlier, he said, reducing the amount of money the town would have to borrow to cover its operating expenses.

School board reaffirms block scheduling for elementary specialists

The SAD #44 Board of Directors has voted yet again to support the district administration's plans for block scheduling of elementary art, music and physical education specialists.

At its last meeting, on June 26, the board listened to teachers' objections to the plan, and a number of board members worried that parents would raise objections when the plan was implemented in the fall. Nonetheless, the board took no action at that time, generally concurring that the matter was properly one for the administration to handle.

At this week's meeting, board members Stan Howe and Marjorie Osgood raised the issue again, and the board went on to spend nearly two hours rehearsing the pros and cons of the proposal.

But in the end they again decided—this time with a formal vote—to leave the matter in the administration's hands and

Selectmen tap Brian Stowell as Bethel's new police chief

Bethel native Brian Stowell has been selected by the Board of Selectmen to be the town's new police chief.

Mr. Stowell will replace Eric Wright, who resigned in mid-May. The three selectmen at Monday evening's meeting (Arthur Gilbert and Peter Haines did not attend) unanimously selected Mr. Stowell from among four finalists for the position. Fourteen applications had originally been received for the job.

Mr. Stowell is currently a patrolman with the Rumford Police Department. He has been with that department for 9½ years, and prior to that served 1½ years as an Oxford County Deputy.

He is a graduate of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy and also attended New Hampshire Vocational Technical College.

He is a certified instructor of criminal patrol and drug enforcement. The new chief is expected to begin work on August 14. According to Town Manager Rodney Lynch, Mr. Stowell's first responsibilities will include bringing the police department up to full strength (chief and two patrolmen, plus reserve officers), implementing a patrol schedule that will provide for nearly round-the-clock coverage, and preparing a police department policies and procedures manual.

The chief's starting salary will be

$23,500 per year, with an increase to $24,000 after the satisfactory completion of a six-month probationary period.

Bethel Inn opens 18-hole golf course

The Bethel Inn & Country Club's annual member-guest weekend marked the opening of the resort's new 18-hole championship layout.

A record 35 teams registered for the two-day tournament and the opportunity to be among the first to play the expanded course.

Geoffrey Cornish, renowned golf course architect and designer of the Falmouth Country Club on the Maine coast and the new Firestone in Akron, Ohio, designed the 6,663 yard, par 72 layout. Blending seven of the original nine with eleven new holes, Cornish and his partner Brian Silva have taken maximum advantage of the rolling terrain, beautiful mountain vistas and the 130 year old Mill Brook Dam.

Four tee positions have been designed for each hole, red-white-blue-gold, to provide competitive opportunities for all levels of skill. "The location of these tees," notes club pro Pete Matthews, "will give players a chance to hit every club in their bag." In addition, golfers will face a unique challenge on "The Dam Hole," a tricky 165 yard, par three, that plays over granite stones set in the mid 1890's to power a grist mill.

Upon opening the new course Bethel Inn proprietor Dick Raser said, "The original nine hole course has offered hundreds of thousands of golfers enjoyable rounds since 1918. Our major objective was to maintain much of the character of the old course while still providing a

Todd Chretien learned first hand last week what it feels like when heavily armed soldiers turn their guns on students peacefully protesting the actions of a totalitarian government—and it happened a lot closer to home than China.

Mr. Stowell, his wife, Linda, and their two children currently live in Bryant Pond. Mrs. Stowell is a music teacher in SAD #44.

Bethel currently has one full-time police officer, and applications closed this week for the remaining full-time position. Mr. Stowell will be part of the team interviewing candidates for that slot.

In other business Monday evening, the selectmen set August 5 as the date for a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the town's ordinance governing the use of skateboards and similar devices on streets and sidewalks.

It is already a violation of the ordinance to skateboard on town streets and sidewalks. The proposed amendment would allow police to impound devices used in violation of the ordinance.

The amendment reads as follows: "Any violation of the provisions of Sec. 44 town ordinance after the first warning may result in the impoundment of the device for a period not to exceed five days for the first offense; for a period of 10 days for the second offense; and for a period not to exceed 30 days for any subsequent offense."

A smaller group of 200 students broke off from the main group and marched out through the university's back gate, then continued around the university walls toward its main gate.

Todd watched as the students marched, waving books and chanting "books are our weapons."

As the students approached the main gate, however, government soldiers, who had assembled outside the university walls, opened fire with M-16s—firing first over the heads of the students, then lower and into the crowd.

The students broke and scrambled for the relative safety of the university's walls. Todd, who was nearby, dove under a Volkswagen bus, then worked his way slowly back into the university, using whatever bits of cover he could find.

Once inside, he joined the other students hurrying for the protection of the large Law Building. The soldiers, however—who traditionally have remained outside the university wall—pursued the students through the gate, throwing grenades and shooting.

Once inside the wall the soldiers began to strafe the Law Building with M-16 fire. The shooting continued for four hours, until the Red Cross was able to negotiate a cease fire. The students, including Todd, then left the building with their hands behind their heads, and the injured and wounded were taken to hospitals. Among the injured was a fellow American student who had broken his leg in the rush for cover.

Greenstock waste station to try new, exanded system for recyclables

"The Redeemer" will soon be coming to the Greenstock Transfer Station. Transfer station officials hope the multi-compartment, roll-off recycling system will take a big bite out of the trash flow at the station—and help to keep down the rapidly rising cost of disposing of solid waste.

Basically a long dumpster with compartments for different types of recyclables, the Redeemer will allow residents of Greenwood and Woodstock to add plastic containers and corrugated cardboard to the materials they already separate from their trash stream.

The new system is expected to be up and running by the middle of August. The transfer station will be renting the system on a one-year trial basis from B.A.R. Company, of Oxford. For an estimated cost of $1,820 a year, the company will set up the system and regularly haul the collected recyclables away for disposal.

Greenwood selectwoman Marie Bartlett said that the system will pay for itself if residents separate out 1,000 pounds from the approximately 28,000 pounds of solid waste that is deposited at the transfer station each week.

The savings will come in the form of reduced tipping fees and hauling cost for the remaining unseparated waste that must be trucked to Norridgewock for disposal.

The Redeemer provides compartments for newspapers and clear glass (which are already being recycled at the station) and for two new categories of recyclables: plastic containers and corrugated cardboard.

Mrs. Bartlett noted that adding the new categories and increasing the overall portion of waste recycled at the station will make it eligible for increased state funds—further driving down the net operational costs at the station.

The new system, she said, also somewhat simplifies the mechanics of recycling, which should encourage more people to make the effort.

Corrugated boxes must be flattened before being deposited, and plastic containers should be rinsed and their tops removed (tops can then be tossed in

Opinions

A note from the publisher

Kathryn Loevey came in to give a paper last Wednesday afternoon after leaving work at W.J. Wheeler—as she does each Wednesday on her way home from work.

A friend had called her to tell her the bad news that The Citizen had been sold.

I asked her why that was bad news and she said Bethel people were independent and didn't like being part of a big conglomerate. She said that she liked her local paper to have an independent voice.

I explained to her that, in its 89 years of existence, The Citizen had occasionally been owned by out-of-town families.

And in any case, the Costello family—owners of the Lewiston Sun-Journal and now owners of The Citizen—are not a conglomerate but a multi-generation Maine family. And I assured her that even though the paper was now part of a larger organization, its editorial voice would still be independent.

She seemed reassured by my assurances and said she might not always agree with my editorial point of view, but she was glad that The Citizen did indeed have an independent point of view.

I realize that readers will be figuratively holding their breath for the next few months, waiting to see what sort of changes are forthcoming in The Citizen.

My feeling is that the changes will be for the better. I expect we'll be able to do the sort of things I've been hoping to do for years but never had the resources to do such as, have more coverage of our outlying towns, have more sports news, have more school news, and have more ads.

I expect the paper will be noticeably bigger and newer in coming years.

As much as people are curious as to what changes will take place in their paper, they are also curious as to why I sold the paper.

Norris Brown suggested it was in order to make a lot of money. Wrong. I never have concerned myself with making a lot of money. If I did, I wouldn't be in the newspaper business.

Robin Zinchuk suggested it was because I had lost my love for the Bethel area. Wrong. It's the finest place I've ever lived, with the finest assortment of people.

Bill Cough, one of the people who noticed the increasing dullness in my eyes, asked me a few months ago if it wasn't a case of not having time to smell the flowers—or as he (and Socrates before him) put it, "The unexamined life is not worth living."

And that was the truth of the matter. I had, through lack of revenue to hire more staff, or poor management or position where each week I was putting in more and more hours. Finally, when my work week pegged at seven days and seven nights, I realized that I couldn't continue. The paper needed the assistance of a larger organization.

I turned to the Costello family because The Citizen staff had come to know them and their Lewiston Sun-Journal staff over the years and had developed a great deal of respect for the way they ran that administration, the Lewiston Sun people care about quality. It shows in their paper, and it showed in the care they took with The Citizen when I took our post-up pages down there every Wednesday morning to be printed.

As I have said before, a newspaper is a reflection of the communities it serves. The Citizen's great strength is the contributions of its readers. The columns that we receive from our local correspondents, the news from club secretaries, the photos sent in of 50th anniversaries, the letters to the editor...these are the parts of The Citizen that give the paper its uniqueness.

Which is not to say that we who go to the board meetings, research issues affecting our communities, and run around taking photos at various events do not contribute something. We bring detailed and reliable information on issues that matter to local residents.

But a community newspaper needs to report the ordinary—the school lunch menus, the births, weddings, obituaries and school honor rolls—more than the extraordinary. We may win journalistic prizes for an excellently reported story, but we'll lose readers if we don't publish the honor roll as soon as it's available.

To date, the mix of information we have provided readers seems to more or less suit the needs of an informed citizenry. We are well aware of the areas that can be improved, and will try to bring about those improvements.

I have long been mindful of Mao Tse-tung's dictum: "Serve the people." With the assistance of a larger organization behind The Citizen, we will hopefully be able to serve even better than before.

The Little League and Farm Team seasons wound up this past week, and it was good to see so many kids learning the basics of teamwork and sportsmanship—not to mention baseball and good times. The coaches and umpires are to be commended for giving of themselves so that the youngsters could participate in the All-American sport. Of course, the unsung heroes were the parents, who got their kids to and from the games, and cheered them on during the games.

I still cannot believe the time the Congress is wasting on worrying about a few kooks who might want to make a statement by taking a match or a meat cleaver to the American flag.

Last Wednesday's Wall Street Journal carried the following grim statistics: "About 11 percent of U.S. newborns, or about 375,000 babies a year, now are exposed to drugs during pregnancy, according to a 36-hospital survey last year by the National Association for Perinatal Addiction Research and Education....At D.C. General [Hospital], about 3 percent of babies delivered in 1982 were born to drug-addicted mothers; by last year, the number had soared to 18 percent."

These drug-addicted babies often have physical and mental disabilities and sap the resources of the nation's hospitals. As these babies grow, they will continue to drain the country's social service programs.

If the nation collapses, it won't be because of lack of a B-2 bomber or because a few flags were desecrated; it will be because of drugs. And the Bush administration and the Congress do nothing to reverse the trend.

track classes because feelings could be hurt. Teams can't be chosen by captains because someone is chosen last. Competition isn't a four letter word!

This trend seems to make no difference to some people. As long as your child and your child are treated exactly equal, it doesn't make a difference to certain people if the children fall behind the rest of the state and country. This is a sure way to insure mediocrity.

This attitude relates directly to little league baseball, which is all this letter was intended to address. Being one of the Red Sox coaches, I realize the Braves have a very good team. However, both of our games against them were close and the Braves have had other close games, as well. If we were truly forming a "Super Team" in Bethel the teams would be divided up differently than they are now.

I know that people have "heard it all" before about the Braves losing all of their games three years ago, and the Red Sox only winning two games last year; still, it bears repeating. Good teams aren't

The Selectman met Tuesday morning. Burton Mills, chairman of the Planning Board, met with them to discuss location of the road leading to the proposed Powder Ridge Development, near the Old Mountain road, and to get the feeling as to continuing the road past the development, and connecting the two valleys, Bear River and Sunday River. Opinions seem to be divided as to whether the road should connect the two valleys, and the location, but it was felt that the option to continue the road that the option to continue the road should be left open. The developers would construct the road to town road specifications, and it is expected they would ask the town to take it over. There are several options as to where the road leading to the development would be located. These will be discussed further at coming Planning Board meetings.

This Week at the Moses Mason House

The Maine Old Cemetery Association held its summer meeting at the Dr. Moses Mason House on July 22. A slide presentation on historic Bethel followed greetings to the group from Society president Dr. Marvin Ovinga. In the afternoon Society Director Stanley R. Howe

Spoke about the Society's most recent publication on Bethel cemeteries and led a tour of historic Woodland Cemetery for the group.

On Sunday July 23, the Society held a reception for Don and Edie Eddy, who will be leaving Bethel for Haverford, PA on July 31. Both Mr. and Mrs. Eddy have long been active in the Society since their coming to Bethel in 1972. Mr. Eddy was a trustee from 1976 to 1978. Earlier he had served on the search committee which named the Society's first administrator. He chaired the Building Committee for several years, served on the Naming Committee and chaired the committee which revised the Society's constitution in 1978. Mrs. Eddy served on the Society's Museum Committee many years, served as Secretary and Clerk of the Trustees from 1978-81 and participated for several seasons as a guide in the museum. Life members of the Society, they also were generous contributors to the endowment campaign and to the Marjorie MacArthur Noll Volunteer Service Award when it was established in honor of outstanding volunteer service to the Society in 1987.

Mrs. Eddy, a longtime friend of Mrs. Noll's, still serves on the selection committee for the award. In short, the Eddys have served the Society in many ways, from hosting Society speakers to missing by their many historical friends.

Among the most recent contributors to the Society's 1989 Endowment Campaign are Ethel J. Herr, Bethel, in memory of Mrs. Quinn and Don and Edie Eddy, Bethel. To date the Eddys have contributed $1557 to the Society Endowment. Much appreciation is expressed for this generosity.

Next members of the Bethel Historical Society is John Moody of Sharon, VT.

Following is an observation on the past by a famous personage:

"I honestly believe that the only real way one can hope to understand and cope with the present is by knowing and being able to interpret what happened in the past." Prince Charles

The Society calendars are now out. They are available at the museum when it is open, and some of the Society members have them to sell.

The next meeting will be the annual picnic at Ray and Annela Burnham's home. The meal is at 6 p.m. The business meeting is at 7 p.m.

Attendance at the museum has improved lately. Make it even better by going yourself.

Saturday and Sunday, July 15 and 16, were great days for the Tri-Town flea market. They fared pretty good. Also Mollycoddett Day had a huge attendance.

July 18, "Root" Lawrence went to Lewiston to the Central Maine Imaging Center for a MRI test. It was rather cool in there, so he got a cold. On the way home we called on Roy Silver and Carol Record at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway.

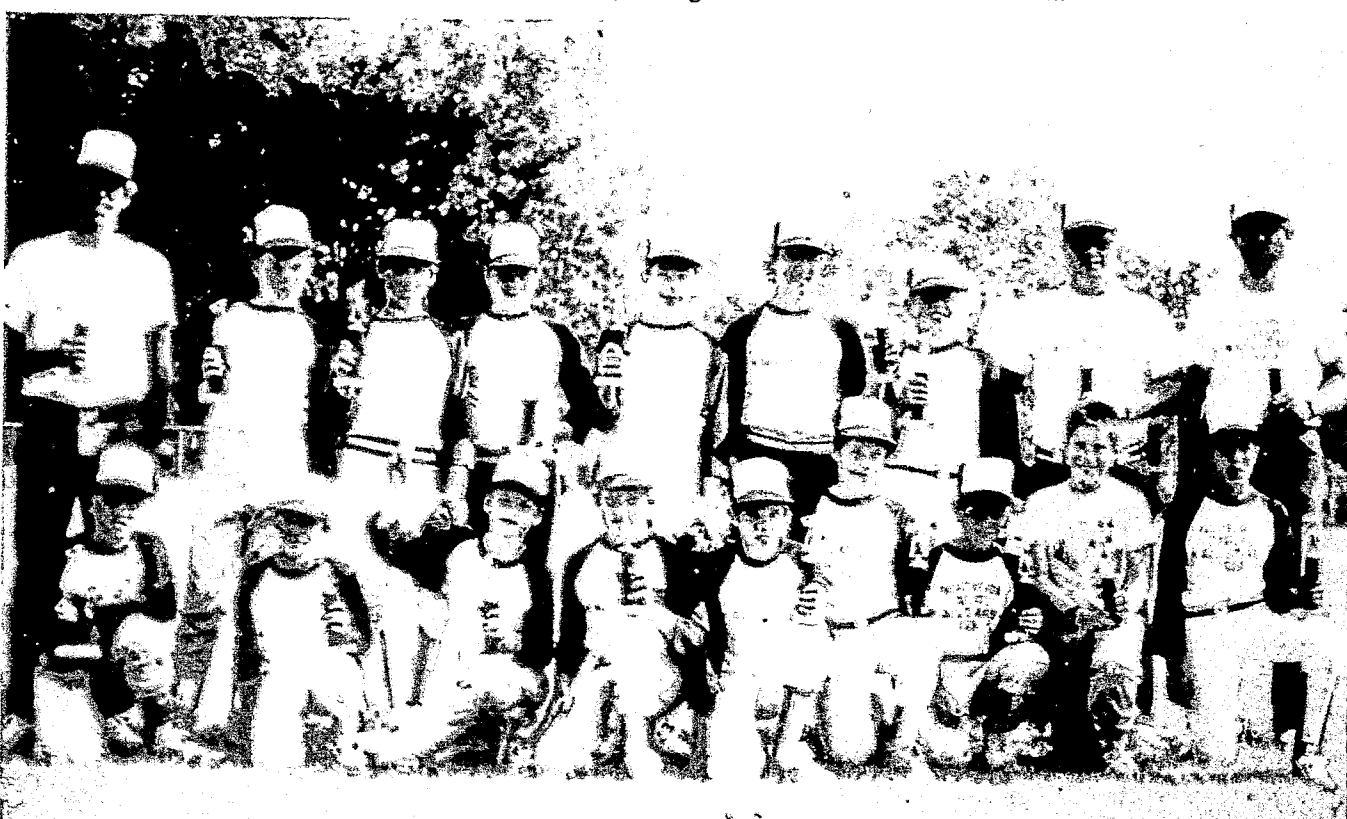

Wednesday, July 18, we called on Mr. and Mrs. Norman Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Felt.

Callers at the "Root" Lawrences have been Jeanne Millett, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. Roger LaCroix, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heath Jr., Amanda and Jeremy, Odell Heath, Mione Record, Lucy Robbins, Richard Felt and Joe Kalinowski.

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE. James Costello, left, and his son Steve, second from right, visited The Citizen last week to meet the staff. The Costello family, owners of the Lewiston Sun, recently purchased The Citizen and are now working with the Bethel staff to explore ways the strengths and resources of the two publishing operations can be melded together. Other people at the meeting were Don Brown, Cathy Hoy, Kim Harris, Kim Stinson (who had a bad cold) and John Brown. Not shown are Edwin Brown, Musa Brown, George Gibson and Bernie Wideman.

bottom of the sixth and although two runners reached base, the outcome, again, was never in doubt.

Game four, the third of the day, was against Rumford and the Allstars won 11 to 6. Again, offense was the key to victory with Sean Gilson hitting two tape measure jobs out in center and right center and Chris Howe hitting a two run homer that would have made Yaz take a second look. Tim Remington pitched five innings with Josh Otten closing the door on Rumford in the bottom of the sixth—making it four games in a row.

The Championship game started at 8 p.m. Sunday against A.Y.S. Josh Otten was the starting pitcher for the Allstars and for five innings he held the A.Y.S. team to just one hit and one run. But, for five innings, the Allstars had also managed only one run, which they scored in the bottom of the first.

With the score tied 1-1 in the top of the sixth, Tim Remington got the call to shut down A.Y.S. and shut them down he did. The game moved on to the bottom of the sixth with the score still tied. Although the Allstars had threatened several times, with Tim Farrar reaching base safely every time up and the heart of the order stinging the ball sharply, the A.Y.S. defense was ample enough to keep the score tied.

The defensive play of the game came in the top of the fifth when Clint Myers threw a strike from deep second base on a relay that cut down the runner at home plate. He threw a hummer and Alan Leach applied the tag three feet in front of the plate. There was no way that A.Y.S. guy was going to score.

So, now we reach the bottom of the sixth with the score tied 1-1. Josh Otten singled to left to open the inning. Sean Gilson then hit a rope to center for a double. Josh never looked back as he rounded third base and with a stutter step at the plate that would have caught Carlton Fisk off guard, scored the winning run while the A.Y.S. catcher was still hunting for the ball at the plate. It was a thriller in Farmington that will not soon be forgotten. Fourteen of the finest formidable Northern Oxford Little Leaguers went north and brought home the Championship.

Reserves were: Jason Braden, West Paris; Josh Dunham, West Paris; Wade Luxton, West Bethel; and Joel Riley, Bethel. Coaches were: Leslie Otten, Newry; Robbie Wornell, West Paris; and Bob Remington, Bethel. Equipment manager was Adam Luxton.

"Open water is a thing of the past," said Mr. Spidell.

In addition to drilling a well, the anticipated changes will involve construction of a reservoir, a pumping station and new piping.

An engineering study has estimated the cost of the overhaul at $840,000, but the district is trying to find simpler, less costly alternatives. For example, Mr. Spidell said, the study called for placing the new reservoir on the top of Farrington Hill, but other sites are being considered that would be less expensive.

One trade off with the less expensive sites is lower water pressure. The water district is looking into the impact this might have on the fire department and insurance ratings, Mr. Spidell said.

He estimated that the district could support a construction loan of no more than $200,000 for the improvements, so the directors are also attempting to line up sources of possible grants to help make up the balance of the cost.

The final decision on what improvement to make and how to finance them will be made by the district members. "It's certainly not going to be made by me," Mr. Spidell said.

The present system was built in the first decade of the 20th century—not to supply drinking water, but to insure an adequate supply of water for fighting fires.

Over time, however, the system gradually replaced individual wells as the town's primary source of drinking water, thus making it subject to federal drinking water regulations.

It still also serves as the fire department's main source of water for fighting fires in the village.

School Board

to support adoption of the plan for the coming school year.

While expressing support for the administration, some board members repeated their earlier criticisms of the way it had handled the decision, especially its apparent failure to seek input from teachers and parents.

"Abyssmal," "clandestine," said Chairman Merton Brown of the process. "The bomb has not yet hit, but it's going to hit and hit hard," in the fall, he predicted.

Other members, however, appeared to feel the board had already spent more than enough time on the matter. "Don't just sit here and dither and dither and say it might not work—try it!" said Nancy Dewing, of Greenwood, who grew visibly exasperated as the lengthy and repetitious discussion dragged on.

In new business Monday evening, the board approved the appointment of Kellie Hart as full-time custodian for the Woodstock School, and accepted the resignation of Rebecca Hembree as English teacher and drama coach at Telstar High School.

Members also voted to cancel the board's regularly scheduled meeting of August 14.

Board members John Foster and Betsy White, of Andover, and Denise Putnam, of Woodstock, did not attend Monday's meeting.

United Way plans drive

Directors of the Oxford County United Way voted Thursday, July 13, to hold the first annual countywide drive in October.

Since the organization has just been formed, there is very little time to plan and execute a countywide effort; therefore, the directors have planned a limited drive with a modest goal.

The feeling was that such a drive should begin this year and not lose the momentum that has already begun.

As soon as guidelines are prepared, participating agencies will be asked to apply to the Oxford County United Way for funding. In the meantime, plans to formalize the organization, establish by-laws, establish nonprofit status and the structure of the campaign will all go on simultaneously.

The Oxford County United Way will support community and human service organizations in Oxford County who serve residents living in the County.

along with the containers).

Only opaque plastics should be deposited, she said. Any container you can see through—for example, milk jugs, some peanut butter jars and shampoo bottles—cannot be recycled, because of the types of plastic they contain.

The recycled clear glass should include no window glass, TV tubes or light bulbs. Newspapers should be placed in cardboard boxes or paper bags and not tied with string.

Brown and green glass will continue to be collected in barrels, since the station does not generate enough of either to warrant their inclusion in the Redeemer system.

Mrs. Bartlett said that in addition to saving the two towns money, the new system will also give a detailed breakdown of the volumes of recyclables generated in each category—valuable information as the towns try to develop a long-term solid waste strategy.

"But, of course," she said, "for anything like this to work, people have to change their habits a little and be willing to pitch in."

Eventually, other parents made contact with the student's, and arrangements were made to fly him back to New York.

Todd and 10 other American students studying at the university considered leaving after the incident but have elected to stay in San Salvador until their original departure date of August 16.

"They want to finish their work," Ellen Christen said, "but more importantly, they felt that their presence—now that the military knows they're there—might help to protect Salvadorian students from more attacks."

Nonetheless, she said, she's "terrified" for her son's safety.

By LORRAINE MILLS

For many years there has been no Farm Team in Greenwood but this year is different. Under the coaching of Joe Hebert, 16 young people have worked hard to place third for this season. Many of these youngsters had never played ball before which makes their achievement even more remarkable. Their record stands at four wins and two losses, losing to West Paris in the playoff. (That's a better average than the Boston Red Sox.) Those on the team are Carrie Mason, Kelly Jordan, Jason Mullen, Tim Hebert, Mark Tripp, Jennifer McAllister, Darby Hickey, Monica Bean, Keith Stevens, Hana Seames, Jennifer Stevens, Heather Best, Christy Walker, Stacy Bachelder, Tonia Cole and Jonathan Wakefield. Besides the Farm Team there are two other teams, the Little League, under the coaching of Wayne Brown, of Patch Mountain, placed fifth for the season and 11 five to seven year olds made up the T-Ball Team with Cindy Hebert as coach, who had about as much fun as the children did.

I am getting a little paranoid about summer. For the fourth summer in four years I've had a problem with kidney stones and I'm getting a little tired of it. I spent Wednesday in misery but luck-ly didn't have to have surgery this time. But what is it about summer?

The North Pond Sailing Association held its second race Sunday, July 16, at North Pond with a good turnout and good weather. Sylvia Martin, of Indian Pond, won three races; Andy Powers, of Rowe Hill, won one race and Bob Silvia, from Moulton, Mass., won one race. The three high point leaders for the season are Sylvia Martin, 564 points; Alice Johnson, 457 points; and Andy Powell, 310 points. The next dates are Sunday, July 30, at North Pond and Sunday, Aug. 6, at 1 p.m. at North Pond. On Saturday, Aug. 5, the NPSA will hold its annual potluck supper at 6 p.m. at Davista Lodge, Round Pond. The Greenwood Fire Department will meet Tuesday, Aug. 1, at 7 p.m. at the Fire Station for their regular meeting. The field picnic for the Farm Team of Greenwood will be held Saturday, July 29, and on July 30 the Little League will hold their field picnic.

TELSTAR MIDDLE SCHOOL has developed a good relationship with the new owners of Bear Pond beach resort, in Turner. The new owners—the Simpson family—allowed the middle-schoolers free admission during their annual picnic. To show their appreciation, the middle school industrial arts class constructed a picnic table, which the school gave to the beach owners. Taking part in the recent presentation of the gift were Middle School Principal Bruce Bell, Student Council President Maelynn Patten, and the Simpson family (Betty, Ralph, granddaughter Ashley and daughter Shannon.)

Our guest speaker, Rev. Albert

Rectal Suppositories

Medicines intended for rectal application are available as suppositories, creams, and solutions. Suppositories are generally given for three reasons: (1) it is not possible or practical to give medicines by mouth, such as when the person is vomiting or is unconscious, (2) a rapid absorption and systemic response from the medicine is needed, or (3) the intended site of action is in the rectal area itself.

Medicines given rectally may act locally as in the case of hemorrhoids or suppositories used to evacuate the colon in cases of constipation. Other rectal suppository medicine ingredients are designed to be absorbed from the colon directly into the blood stream. Medicine ingredients are rapidly absorbed into the blood stream and carried to all parts of the body.

Before inserting rectal suppositories, make certain that they are firm to the touch. If the suppository is too soft, hold it (in the foil wrapper) under cool water for a few minutes to allow it to harden. Lie on your left side if you are right handed. Remove the foil wrapper and gently insert the suppository (the pointed end first) into the rectum. Wait a few minutes to make certain the suppository is properly inserted.

Another foggy morning but will probably burn off after a while and be a nice sunny day. Of course we could use a little rain now so it will stay sunny and nice. We got so much rain this spring at one time and at the time I said that we would probably get lots of sunny weather later and need rain and not get it. It just seems to happen that way. Rivers are low and the gardens need water so wish we could get what we need. However, have to take what we can get.

Went to the doctor in North Bridgton last Friday and watched them putting up a sign for the new doctors when we got there. They have built a new office or two for them so there will be more doctors in that building than ever before. A couple of them are new and just starting practice but learn a lot with experience.

On the way home, Peggy and I stopped and got groceries and did other errands that needed doing. Russell stayed home to work in the garden. We have put up peas for next winter as well as beet greens, spinach and Swiss chard. It will all taste good during those cold months and help keep the grocery bill down. It sure goes high enough without having to buy a lot of vegetables. Don't know as I ever saw food prices so high and they keep saying they are low in price. What a laugh. When a few groceries cost so much I don't know how they keep advertising that they are low in cost. It seems like such a big fib.

Saturday was a busy day for us as Peggy had been busy making a wedding cake for her granddaughter's wedding. We had to take it to East Bethel to the home of her father to put it together as Peggy had it done in layers. It was a very pretty cake when assembled and I knew it would be. Peggy has made many wedding cakes and they were all very pretty. After that was accomplished, we went to the church to wait for the time for the wedding to begin. I had Kariann with me and she was real good. However, she doesn't like dogs or cats; in fact she is scared to death of them and at Lorna Carter's home her father has a large dog.

That didn't help Kariann feel good at all but hope by being there she will find that all dogs are not to be feared. It will take time but hope eventually she will learn to like them.

I won't try to write the last name of the groom as I am not sure of it but Lorna and Cue had a lovely wedding at the old Church which has been fixed up in recent years and looks so nice now. It is used for many more meetings than in the past several years. Pictures were taken there at the church after the ceremony and family members were included in some pictures so Lorna and Cue should have some lovely pictures for their albums and to bring back many memories in the years to come. Cue's little daughter was the flower girl and his son was to walk down too but refused to do it. A rather shy little boy in some ways and in others not so shy. Anyway, I sure hope they have a happy life together.

On the way home Peggy asked Russell if he would like to go dancing and he thought he would so off they went that evening. Peggy had called friends in Bethel to go with them and they all went to Greene to have a good time.

On Sunday, Wynona and Michael and Courtney came to have lunch with us and take Kariann home and leave Courtney with me for a few days. I had a good time with Kariann as she was such a good girl for me. We played many games and she is getting good at them. A good loser as well as a winner and that makes it fun to play with her. She was happy to see her folks and ready to go home. Courtney is here with me now until Friday when she will go home. We play games and do what we can to make the time fun for her.

Monday night was Grange at Bryant Pond and an open meeting as it was talent night. We had many come to play music, Russell spoke one of his comedy pieces, there were whistling solos as well as singing solos. All in all it was a lovely program for all to enjoy and I'm sure they did.

Peggy was gone yesterday, Tuesday, putting up cards at her stores. She goes

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Richard,

I sit here contemplating the morning mist as it frosts the ridges of the nearby hills, and I am carried back to other ridges and other times. Because of your love of the mountains, I think of you... of your approaching birthday... of your approach to life, and I thank you for choosing us.

I thank you for being our first born, for coming to us when we were little more than children ourselves, and binding us in a common love for you.

I thank you for delighting all around you, when, as a toddler and the only grandchild, you entertained your audience with precocious performances. You had the stage to yourself, and you responded early to the applause of grandparents, aunts, uncles, and friends.

I thank you for your optimism, apparent at an early age, and enduring as you grew to manhood. Your ability to glide through life in pursuit of your personal holy grail, impervious to setbacks, ever searching for the elusive "pony," is inspiration for us all.

I thank you for your marvelous sense of humor. Your talent for entertaining and your ear for impersonation cause ripples of ribaldry to spread across the land.

I thank you for your sensitivity, for knowing what pleases others, and for caring. You remember the special times and the special days. You call or write or appear when others need a hand or a hug.

I thank you for being a teacher... for showing us that life is wonderful, that joy is all around us, that nature expects us to revel in her beauty and rollick in her bounty. Your appreciation for your world enriches you and those who see through your eyes.

I thank you for your "jai de vivre." When we encounter pleasant experience, we say "Richard would like this." Take Mollycoddle Day for instance: Muddy and the "girls" bought chances from Helen Saunders, Clara Rolfe and their senior citizen cohorts. They enjoyed meeting Helen Morton and connecting her to the water lilies on our wall. They ate lobster rolls and heard the fiddlers in competition. They said, "Richard would like this." When we heard that Dan Grover washed his tractor in his swimming pool in preparation for the parade, we said "Richard will enjoy that story." And when we met the Hanscom family and David, their visiting Spanish student (one of many staying with local families this past couple of weeks), we talked of how you would enjoy immersing yourself in the language and the experience.

When I add a new bird to my list (this week it was a meadowlark and an eastern kingbird) I think, "I must show this to Richard."

I thank you for your generosity, your kindness, your good humor. It has been a pleasure to be your mother and your friend these three decades and one. Continue to be good to yourself and others; you make us proud. Remember that your greatest talent is your ability to bring joy; when you enter a room, happiness enters with you.

You are a gift to us all, and for everyone I say "Thank you" and "Happy Birthday!"

Love, C.B.

We have had a few lovely days this week. This morning the air was crisp and clear. Phoebe squawked its name over and over outside my window at five o'clock. He wanted to be sure I'd be up to see the sun rise. I did a little later. It was a golden ball in a baby blue sky.

After breakfast I went to the flower garden and discovered several bees having their breakfast. Bees are interesting because of their importance in the ecology of a region. Where there are bees there are flowers, more insects and in turn more birds and other animals. Bees have a very organized life and their ability to transmute the nectar of flowers into delicious perfectly balanced food is among the wonders of nature.

I picked some of the Queen of the Meadow, which is just coming into bloom. They grow from two to six feet tall; the flowers are pink, flat topped clusters and very pretty. I put some wild flowers with them and made a beautiful bouquet.

Zilpha DiArenzo, from Pennsylvania, came to her home here on Saturday. Her daughter Louise came with her.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Leonas Holt had several callers: David, Sally, Mary Holt, Norway; Ann Holt, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Durgin and three children, Fran Piccirilli, Greenwood and several others. I joined them on Sunday and it seemed like the time when I lived at the farm and we all sat together on the porch.

Dot Betts took Zilpha DiArenzo, Lettie Brooks and me to the home of Doris Hayes in Gray on Wednesday. Fay and Ann Holt were in Portland on Saturday.

Katherine Hakala and daughter,

Karen, attended the wedding of another daughter, Judith and visited with two brothers in Connecticut recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Inman are home after spending a few days at Cathedral Pines. My callers were: Evelyn Heikkinen, Rena Curtis, Anita Hakala, Katherine Hakala, town.

NOTES FROM Evans Notch District White Mountain National Forest

This summer the Evans Notch Ranger District of the White Mountain National Forest is again working in cooperation with the State of Maine, Department of Conservation by serving as a project site for a four person Maine Conservation Corps team.

The team is made up of youths ranging in age from 14 to 17 years old who have shown an interest in working in the outdoors performing a variety of conservation related activities including trail maintenance, wildlife habitat improvement, and developed and dispersed recreation site maintenance. This year's Corps members include Tony Hart, of Bethel, Susan McKenna, of Bryant Pond, and Ray Derossiers, of Rumford.

Enrollees are paid the state minimum wage and work a total of 32 hours per week. Supervising the crew for the fourth year is Forestry Technician Kay Zimmer, of Bethel.

In other news from the District, recreation use has recovered from a slow start, caused by an unusually wet May and June. Current use rivals that of past summers but is under the use received during the summer heat wave of 1988. A new service is being provided at half the sites in Basin and Cold River Campgrounds. It is now possible to reserve a campsite at one of these areas through a toll free number provided by the MISTIX Corporation, who have contracted with the Forest Service nation wide to provide the service. There is a six dollar per reservation charge and sites must be reserved at least 10 days prior to arrival. The toll free number to make reservations is 1-800-283-CAMP (2287).

There are three small wildlife opening timber sales that will be offered for sale in early August of 1989. Anyone interested in bidding on one or more sales should call or stop by the District Ranger Office on U.S. Route 2 in Bethel, 824-9334. The last day to submit a bid will be Aug. 10 at the close of business.

Finally, there will be some opportunities in the upcoming months to bid on some hiking trail construction and maintenance projects in the District. Anyone interested in bidding on these projects should contact the District Ranger at the aforementioned location.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all my relatives and friends for their loving care and get-well wishes during my recent illness. All the neighborly visits, too, since returning to Maine, are greatly appreciated.

AFTER THE MAINE VIETNAM VETERANS VIGIL COMMITTEE stood vigil at the monument on the Bethel Common for 17 hours—day and night—during the Mollycoddett Day, local American Legion official Jeri Brooks thanked them on behalf of the town. Local Rotarians, who had been cleaning the Common, also stopped by to thank the veterans. The 17-hour vigil commemorates the 17 Maine servicemen still missing in Southeast Asia following the end of the Vietnam War. Among those 17 are two local men: Army Staff Sgt.

John H.R. Brooks, of Bryant Pond, and Air Force Capt. Carl R. Churchill, of Bethel. Sgt. Brooks was missing in Vietnam; Capt. Churchill was missing in Laos. As of last month, there were still 2,348 American servicemen unaccounted for in southeast Asia, according to the Pentagon. The Vigil Committee had a float in the Mollycoddett Day parade with 17 black chairs, each carrying the name of one of the state's missing servicemen.
